Alice was not an animal-lover. She never wanted to have any pets at home. To her, all animals were dirty.
Alice never understood why people liked to have cats or dogs in the house. It was so stupid!

Last month, when Alice's son, Hank, came home from school, he held a box in his hands. Inside the box was a rabbit! Alice was not happy, but Hank said it was his homework. The teacher, Mrs. Brown, asked every student to take care of an animal and learn to get along with it.
Alice needed to say yes.

For the first week, Hank did a good job, but then he did not remember to do his homework. So, Alice had to do it. She gave food and water to the rabbit every day and found it was in fact not dirty. She even talked to it. Now Alice is having lots of fun with "her" rabbit. She named it Big Tooth. And she wants to buy one more to make a pair.
